Detailed Report:

The BA Departmental Orientation Program was organized to welcome the newly admitted undergraduate students and familiarize them with the department, academic structure, and institutional practices. The formal session commenced with a welcome address by the Head of the Department (HOD), who greeted the students and encouraged them to make the most of the opportunities available during their undergraduate studies. The HOD introduced all the faculty members of the department and briefed the students about their roles and areas of specialization. An overview of the BA programme was presented, introducing the major subjects offered, namely Criminology, Sociology, Journalism, English, and Psychology. Students were informed about the interdisciplinary nature of the programme and how each subject contributes to academic learning and career development.

The orientation session, conducted by the Head of the Department, commenced at 10:00 a.m. and concluded at 12:00 noon. During the session, the HOD explained the departmental rules and regulations, attendance requirements, code of conduct, and the importance of maintaining discipline and academic integrity. A detailed explanation of the examination pattern, including Continuous Internal Assessment (CIA), assignments, presentations, practical components, and end-semester examinations, was provided to help students understand the evaluation process.

The HOD also elaborated on the scope and career opportunities associated with the BA programme, highlighting various higher education options, competitive examinations, research opportunities, and career paths in fields such as criminology, social work, media, psychology, public administration, civil services, law enforcement, and journalism. Students were encouraged to actively participate in academic, co-curricular, and extracurricular activities to enhance their overall personality and employability skills.

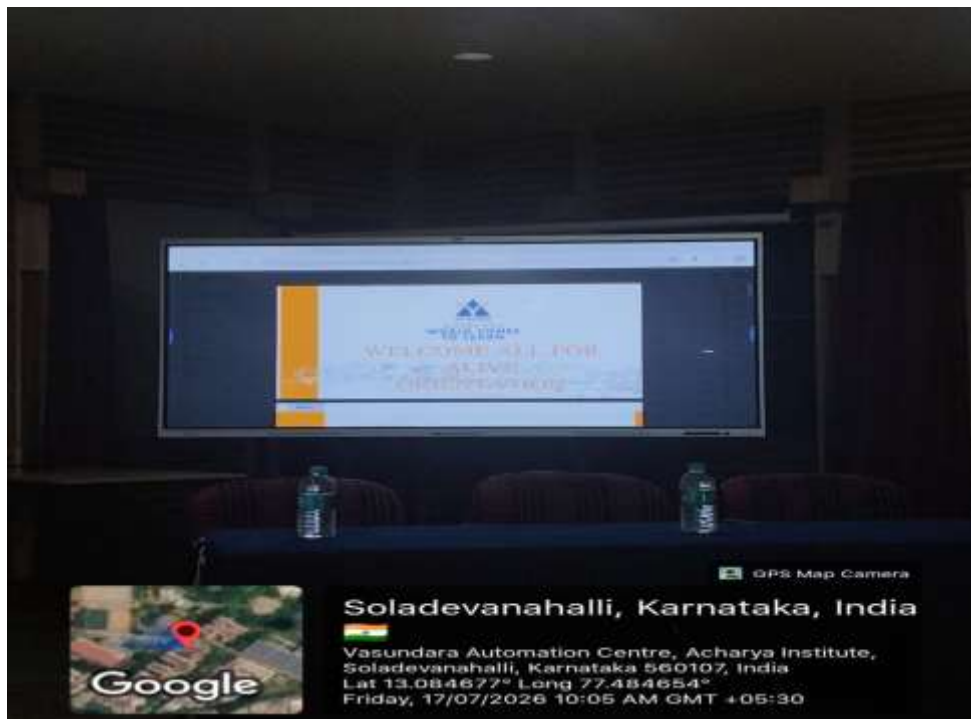

An important segment of the orientation focused on introducing students to the institution's ERP system and the ALIVE learning platform. The HOD demonstrated how these digital platforms can be used for accessing attendance records, study materials, assignments, examination details, notices, and academic updates, enabling students to effectively manage their learning experience.

The session concluded with an interactive question-and-answer session, where students clarified their academic and administrative queries. The program ended with the Vote of Thanks, delivered by a faculty member, expressing sincere gratitude to the Head of the Department, faculty members, and students for their active participation and cooperation, making the orientation program informative, engaging, and successful.
